Visit the GE website to become involved with the world's first popular ethnographic multimedia journal.

Global Ethnographic is a new online magazine-journal designed to popularize and disseminate anthropological perspectives. Engaging articles, photographic exhibitions, films and features will provide the general reader with new ways of interpreting current issues, topics, human relationships and own and other identities.

We anticipate an exciting range of contributions from anthropologists and social/behavioral scientists on a range of topics. Collecting ethnographic research from work across the world, Global Ethnographic will become a unique open-access resource for incisive commentary and analysis on the social relationships, organizations and identities that are defining our new century.

Global Ethnographic expects a wide and diverse interest from the public, students and social science professionals. Get involved now as a writer or editor and/or affiliate with Global Ethnographic for access to a variety of new advertising and teaching resources.
